

Mello Project partners need to notify (through Slack) their partner that they have completed their article; the partner will then review it for accuracy, paying close attention to the transcription. The partner should report any errors, questions, or concern to the article's "owner." Once the owner has made all necessary adjustments (if any), he/she needs to inform the instructor that the assignment is complete.

Website reviewers must review the website linked to the course website and provide honest, useful feedback (through Slack) to the instructor. She will then share the review with the website owner.

Both assignments affect course grades: participation/engagement (10%)--directly affected by completion of the project, partner feedback, and website review--and website (10%), so it is important for reviewers and partners to provide helpful feedback and suggestions.
